FOREWORD

1507864

In compiling this family record of our grandparents, we find that Anna Strausz Nee Graber was the only daughter in a family of six. We have made an outline of her five brothers and their children as to birth, marriage and death.

In the family of Grandfather Jacob Strausz we have almost the reverse as he was the only son in a family of five, here we made an outline of his sisters and their children as to birth, marriage and death. There is no need for name or dates here, as they are all found in the book.

We have every reason to assume that these names and dates are reliable, but of course we cannot in every instance vouch for their absolute correctness.

We wish to thank all, for any help given us to make this book possible, for without that we could not have done this job, but especially we want to thank the descendants of the late J. J. Krehbiel for the splendid records their father made. They are a treasure which should be preserved with the utmost care for future reference, for without them family records such as these would be almost impossible to make.

The history of the Strausz group is the same as of the other Mennonites such as, Stucky, Schrag, Wedel, Ries and many others who had left their homes at various times in search for religious freedom, especially the use of arms against their fellow men. They thought they found such a refuge, when in 1786 Catherine the Great, then Ruler of Russia promised them just such concessions for a period of one hundred years if they would settle in her Domain.

These thrifty people soon established themselves new homes in various Community centers, but after a number of years many of the promises that were given them were withdrawn, and by 1870 the threat of immediate repudiation, of the right of freedom of conscience, in the matter of military service was so imminent that plans again were made for migration.

The migration that took a large number of our Mennonites out of Russia took place in 1874. These groups first settled in the Dakotas and Kansas, but since have scattered over a big part of North America, although many Menonite centers are still in the places of original settlement.

Looking back after seventy five years, during which we have been privileged to enjoy the blessings of complete freedom of Conscience we must feel a great and compelling debt of gratitude to our Fathers for their faith and courage in leaving their homes for a new land, and above all must we be grateful to our Heavenly Father for His loving care and protection in bringing us thus far. May we ever prove ourselves worthy of such blessings.
